

Dorrier Underwood: So Many Initiatives!

So Many Initiatives eliminates excuses and removes barriers to productivity in every area of business. This interactive workshop engages leaders in building a culture of productivity, collaboration, and professional fulfillment.

Participant feedback

The largest tangible improvement has been in the way my leader talks about “desired outcomes,” and the same mentality has begun to emanate within our entire team. It has helped drive conversations to a decision, and often serves to keep people in line when we’re in large meetings.

I’m less prone to regress into the octopus mentality, swatting issues as they arise without doing the prioritization I should.

Highly effective teams are known for:

- ◆ Listening
- ◆ Respecting differences
- ◆ Collaboration
- ◆ Creativity and innovation
- ◆ Straight talk
- ◆ Commitment and enthusiasm

So Many Initiatives elevates productivity by giving teams new ways of thinking about their projects and accountabilities. On an individual level, people learn to communicate rather than complain, and to treat technology as a servant, rather than be dominated by it. Participants emerge finding time they didn’t know they had.

Your company will discover how stepping over things actually trips you up, and how trying to avoid new initiatives leads to more stress rather than less.

So Many Initiatives results in teams that:

- ◆ Complain less.
- ◆ Use technology more effectively.
- ◆ Shift conversations to what is possible.
- ◆ Lead and contribute to powerful meetings.

So Many Initiatives!

A two-day workshop presented by Dorrier Underwood.

9 a.m. to 5 p.m. August 29-30, 2017
Charlotte, North Carolina

$1,750<sup>00</sup>

www.dorrierunderwood.com